A trusted partner of choice

Olympian House International (OHI) is a leading African media production company specialising in development communication, impact storytelling and strategic visibility for NGOs, DFIs, governments and private-sector partners. We transform real community experiences into compelling films that inform, inspire and mobilize action.

With nearly a decade of experience, we have partnered with UN agencies on climate resilience and food security programs, EU-funded development projects and major private-sector actors across Africa. Our accomplished team blends creativity and strategic insight to produce high impact videos, photography and documentaries that enhance credibility and accelerate growth.

Let us support your organisational and investment objectives with storytelling that inspires confidence and drives action.

Our story

Olympian House International (OHI) was founded in 2015 by filmmaker and development communication specialist Fombang Banns N. driven by a simple but powerful belief: stories have the ability to move people and when people move, change follows.

Born out of a lifelong passion for capturing human experience, OHI exists to make Africa's development and investment journeys visible, relatable and unforgettable. We understand that behind every project, every policy and every investment, there are people whose lives reflect the true meaning of impact.

Over the years, OHI has grown into a trusted partner for NGOs, DFIs, investors and governments across the continent. Our work blends creativity with strategy to translate complex initiatives into authentic, human-centered visual stories that inspire confidence, spark collaboration and unlock opportunities. Together, let's tell the stories that build the Africa we imagine.
